

At the Burt Children's Center and Raphael House, San Francisco

Marian Hubler recruited a talented performing group from Hawaii, the Pacific Heart Players, through the Bread & Roses web site. Kate Schuerch, performer and puppeteer, contacted us via e-mail in advance of an upcoming tour to California. Along with her partner, puppeteer Karen Blue, the Pacific Heart Players performed two extremely interactive shows for Bread & Roses children's audiences at the Burt Children's Center and Raphael House in San Francisco.

The duo presented a puppet show with live music featuring large, handmade puppets sharing environmental messages from Hawaii and the Pacific Coastline. With colorful characters like Moana, the teen-age Hawaiian Green Sea Turtle, and Round-up Rob, the country western thresher shark, the Pacific Heart Players shared nature tales and tunes and got everyone in the audience to participate.
